Risk Warning: Past performance is not indicative of future results. Our investment management services relate to a variety of investments, each of which can fluctuate in value. The value of portfolios we manage may fall as well as rise, and the investor may not get back the full amount originally invested. The investment risks vary between different types of instruments. For example, for investments involving exposure to a currency other than that in which the portfolio is denominated, changes in the rate of exchange may cause the value of investments, and consequently the value of the portfolio, to go up or down. In the case of a higher volatility portfolio the loss on realization or cancellation may be very high (including total loss of investment), as the value of such an investment may fall suddenly and substantially. In making an investment decision, prospective investors must rely on their own examination of the merits and risks involved. Disclaimer: Unless otherwise noted, all information contained herein is sourced from BPI AIA* internal data. ### Market Commentary

Asian equities ended the month up in December. During the month, a surprise from the Fed led to a scenario where rate cuts are expected to be sooner. The US 10-year treasury yield ended lower and the US dollar depreciated. Most Asian markets ended the month in the green. India, Australia and Korea appreciated the most, while Thailand and Malaysia appreciated the least. India was up on favorable state election results towards Prime Minister Modi. Australia gained as the materials sector was boosted by higher iron ore prices. Korea outperformed as economic indicators such as exports and PMI beat market expectations. Thailand's trade balance fell further during the month, increasing the deficit. Investors remained cautioned in Malaysia as inflation rose and trade levels decreased. China was the only negative market during the month. China corrected during the month as consumer confidence levels highlighted the low retail sales volumes over the past few months.
